First Mass Flight of U. S. Airmen From Europe

Officers and men check their equipment while more B-24 Liberator bombers land at Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, Conn., from Europe, after the first mass flight of 65 planes carrying approximately 1100 8th and 15th Air Force personnel. Scenes of wild rejoicing took place as these men, many of whom have bombed every major target of the Axis in Africa and Europe arrived home on furloughs. Another 40,000 men are expected to return in the next 60 days.

The War Today..

German Regeneration

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP War Analyst

THINGS are moving in the regeneration of Germany, and one of the most striking developments revolves about the appointment of an aged anti-Nazi German to carry out the administration—under American supervision—of a large political unit in the Rhineland.

He is Dr. Hans Fuchs, a public official for many years prior to the Hitler regime, who is to work under Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, military governor and commander of the U. S. 15th army. Dr. Fuchs's service dates back to the days of Kaiser Wilhelm and he knows his people. It is of prime significance when he tells us:

"My greatest aim is to inculcate a new Christian spirit in our youth, a spirit in which both Catholic and Protestant churches must collaborate in teaching. In a conference with educational leaders of the Rhineland I told them the combined efforts of all of us would be necessary to rid the Nazi thoughts from our people's minds, and in this the Christian church, regardless of creed (Dr. Fuchs is a Catholic), would have to be the leading factor and carry the greatest responsibility."

Letters are coming to my desk from throughout the country as the result of comment in this column on the remarking of Germany. German reform must, of course, depend on a long and intensive period of education—especially since Hitler paved the way for his barbarities and aggression by depriving German youth of their religion.

It's vital that Germany be given back her religion, and this is the burden of the letters. I can assure some pertinent comment among notes I made in 1942 on a conversation with the late Dr. William Temple, archbishop of Canterbury, in London. His grace branded Hitler an anti-Christ and told me:

"I understand that when Hitler

Late Bulletins GAS RATIONS ARE BOOSTED

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, May 24.—A Reuters dispatch from the British Second army said Heinrich Himmler killed himself at 11:04 p. m. yesterday by drinking poison.

"Heinrich Himmler, head of the German Gestapo, committed suicide at the headquarters of the Second British army, at four minutes past 11 last night," the dispatch said. "This news was made available officially this evening."

STRIKE SPREADS IN POTTERY DISTRICT

EAST LIVERPOOL, May 24.—A work stoppage of pottery employees in the East Liverpool area spread to a second plant today as 20 kiln men at the Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co. at nearby Chester, W. Va., left their jobs and forced idleness upon 100 others.

The Edwin M. Knowles Co. at Newell, W. Va., has been operating at half capacity since Tuesday when 40 kiln placers failed to report, making 300 employees idle.

Richard Smith, manager of the Chester pottery, said the stoppage was precipitated by a company refusal to hire a worker who left his job at the Newell pottery. Officials of the AFL-National Brotherhood of Operative Potters contended the Chester company has "locked out" its employees.

The Knowles controversy started when the concern released a worker for failure to produce a discharge paper from another pottery, a company spokesman said. The union also claimed a lockout in this dispute.

CLEVELAND, May 24.—The fifth regional War Labor board has directed 550 pottery workers of the Limerick China Co. and the French-Saxon Co., both at Sebring, to return to jobs they left three weeks ago in a walkout over a wage rate dispute.

Skip Older Men In Draft Call June 5

Salem Draft board officials announced today that notices of induction have been mailed to a medium-sized group of Salem district selectees, who are to leave here Tuesday, June 5, for the Cleveland induction center.

Officials said the call would be made up entirely of young men, 18 or slightly older. No older men are included.

The orders call for the draftees to report to the Pennsylvania depot at 9 a. m. June 5.

Youths In Train-Auto Crash Are Reported Fair

Betty Straley, 16, and William A. Aldrich, Jr., 14, both of East Palestine, who were injured seriously in a train-car accident in Columbiana County, are reported to be in "fair" condition at Salem City hospital today.

Two other injured, Sara Jane Wilson, 14, and Robert G. Figley, 14, also of East Palestine, are reported to be "fairly good."

"A" Coupons Worth Six Gallons June 11; "B" Increases O. K. d

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 24.—Uncle Sam gave the signal today for more gasoline for the nation's motorists.

Relieved of pouring thousands of barrels daily to European battlefronts, the government announced a 50 per cent increase in basic "A" rations, effective June 22, and a substantial boost for many "B" drivers beginning June 11.

The new A-16 coupons will be good for six gallons each instead of four. Motorists thus will be able to obtain an average of three gallons a week rather than two.

The change in the "B" ration increases the ceiling for supplementary gasoline to 650 miles a month throughout the country. Currently the top allowance is 475 in the midwest.

The OPA and the petroleum administration for war last night emphasized that not all "B" drivers will be eligible for increases.

"B" ration holders who can show an occupational need for more, in addition to the "A" hike, will be able to present their case to local ration boards beginning June 11, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles said.

"A" coupons will continue to become valid in series of six and will be good three months as at present. The only difference is they will be honored for 50 per cent more gasoline.

Biggest Air Raid Leaves Tokyo Ablaze

By LEONARD MILLMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Tokyo was ablaze today from the greatest air raid of the Pacific war. More than 550 Superfortresses struck in the bright moonlight of early morning with a bomb load equivalent to that of a 2,000 plane raid over Europe, as mud-covered

The Nipponese tried suicide tactics around the key fortress of Shuri on Okinawa. The 96th division fought a 48-hour hand grenade duel with Japanese for possession of one hill and broke up an attack by 500 Japanese only after it had gone a half mile through American lines.

Face Murderous Fire
The 77th infantry ran into murderous fire while the First Marines who drove a half mile wedge into the heart of Naha, demolished capital.

The Seventh infantry division seized two more strategic heights south and west of occupied Yonabaru.

On Mindanao, in the southern Philippines, the 31st division lunged to within eight miles of a junction with the 40th and Americal divisions. East of Manila, on Luzon, the 38th division resorted to medieval catapults, hurling barrels of jellied gasoline, to augment aerial fire raids.

Strong air support in other theaters helped infantrymen drive forward 10 miles in the southern Philippine fronts, and push closer to two Japanese-held former U. S. air bases in China.

More than a million tons of war cargo were diverted from Europe to the Pacific before May 10. "Tough and realistic" training was promised to acquaint European veterans with what they will be up against in the Pacific. And extensive retraining of bomber crews to augment B-29 forces was indicated.

Direct Hits Made
Japanese broadcasts admitted fires were still burning in southern Tokyo hours after the last waves of Superfortresses hit. Direct hits, some setting off explosions, were reported in the target area, including the Shinagawa railway marshalling yards through which a third of Japan's rail traffic passes, and one of the most important sections of Nippon's precision instrument and machine tool industry.

High winds spread the fires so that they were visible for 200 miles at sea.

Tokyo reported that fires broke out in the grounds of the Imperial palace and the detached Kaikyo palace. It claimed 27 Superfortresses were shot down and 30 damaged.

"Fire balls" rained past the 4-238, but pilots couldn't agree whether they were jet pilot or "baka bomba" or flying bomb.

HOPKINS, DAVIES ON MISSIONS TO LONDON, MOSCOW

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 24.—President Truman sent two trusted emissaries to London and Moscow today.

Presumably they will open preliminary negotiations looking to ultimate "Big Three" settlement of grave international issues involving the United Nations.

Harry L. Hopkins, confidante of President Roosevelt, is enroute on a new mission to Moscow. Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia, is headed for conferences with Prime Minister Churchill.

These developments, announced by the White House late yesterday, followed disclosure that Mr. Hopkins had decided to make a permanent mission to San Francisco to closing session of the United Nations conference.

Following up yesterday's talk at the White House with Secretary of State Stettinius, recent conferences with Prime Minister Churchill, and the United Nations, they are to the conclusion that the executive is preparing to move into the international scene.

Since he entered the White House, Mr. Truman has taken every opportunity to acquaint himself with the details of Mr. Roosevelt's dealings with Moscow and London.

Last week the President announced he hoped to arrange a meeting soon with Premier Stalin and Mr. Churchill.

Similar hope was expressed by the British prime minister, but there has been no silence from Moscow.

This raised speculation today whether Hopkins and Davies would be able to pave the way for an early "Big Three" get-together.

Germany Dissolve As A Nation With Government Ended

By WES CALLAGHER
PARIS, May 24.—Germany entered an era of atonement today as the dissolution of the last vestiges of her government marked the end of the phase of disarmament.

Germany has ceased to exist as a nation. She has no boundaries except as defined by the Allies. She is not united, because of the zones cut through the heart of the Reich marking off the various occupying armies. She has no political life, no economic life except as dictated by the Allies, and no social life.

Fears that the Allies might install a puppet government from the remnants of Admiral Karl Doenitz's regime faded as the entire government and high command headed for prison camps.

Almost simultaneously came Gen. Eisenhower's order that German prisoners be screened and those over age and not war criminals be returned to Germany to work farms and perform other duties necessary under the Allied occupation.

This screening will sift out the war criminals and those Nazis who will be headed for labor in war-ravaged countries.

The only Germans left in any authority in the Reich were those municipal officials appointed by the Allies, and a few underlings of the Flensburg government, kept on the job under Allied supervision to straighten out and turn over essential records.

Truman Stands Pat On His Four-Way Cabinet Shuffle

President Truman

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 24.—President Truman stood pat today on a four-way cabinet reshuffle that gave the west added prestige and subtracted age.

Mr. Truman named new secretaries of agriculture and labor and a new attorney general late yesterday as a followup to his earlier designation of Robert E. Hannegan, 41, to replace 59-year-old Postmaster General Frank C. Walker.

There were indications that no further shifts in the 10-member presidential family are imminent.

Political observers viewed the selections as retaining a somewhat "liberal tinge" to the cabinet, although both so-called "conservative" and pro-Roosevelt factions in Texas were reported pleased with the promotion of Tom C. Clark of Dallas, 48-year-old assistant attorney general, to succeed Francis Biddle, 59.

Miss Perkins Replaced
The shuffling removed this country's first woman cabinet member, Miss Frances Perkins, 63, who has been in her post more than 12 years. In her place Mr. Truman put Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington state, 50-year-old former senator and close friend of the President.

Rep. Clinton P. Anderson, 49-year-old New Mexican who heads the special house food investigating committee and who, like Schwellenbach, supported most of Roosevelt's proposals, was named secretary of agriculture in place of Claude Wickard, 52. The latter was designated rural electrification administrator.

Anderson also will take over the duties of the War Food administration as soon as Marvin Jones returns to the United States Court.

Switching Shoes

A year ago when our own policies was warming up, the British were warned not to take the national election in the United States too seriously. Americans, they were told, were likely to say and do things during a national campaign that no foreigner could understand. The British, themselves, took a pledge to stay out of America's quadrennial "family fight".

The shoe now is on the other foot. Britain is getting ready for an election. We are going to hear that Prime Minister Churchill is everything his admirers and critics thought he wasn't. That sort of thing already has started.

We also will hear, in all probability, that if Mr. Churchill isn't elected, Great Britain will go to pot; that he is the only Englishman who can hold up Britain's dignity in conferences with Marshal Stalin and President Truman. And if we listen closely, we will hear that the reason for throwing out Mr. Churchill and getting a new boy to look after British interests is because he has been taken into camp by sharp American foreigners. No American will believe this, because we know that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin are the sharp foreigners, but it will be said.

In brief, this is a good time to concede that British politics yields nothing to our own in irrational arguments used to approach rational conclusions. With that in mind, we shall be well advised to let the British fight among themselves and reflect that when it's over there will always be an England, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding. Meanwhile, if anyone wants to lay odds against the probability that there still will be a Prime Minister Churchill, it's a good bet to take.

Congress Should Make Policy

The government is making more than military decisions in its demobilization plans and in the basis of selection for continued draft calls.

Some of these decisions are out of the realm of military responsibility and into the borderland of social policy. In this area, Congress has undisputed authority.

Thus, at this time a congressional review of demobilization prospects and selective service would be in order. Another clearly would be in order at the end of the Japanese war. The public needs complete assurance that Congress retains its prerogative to decide all matters not directly related to prosecution of the war, particularly demobilization.

A sample of the confusion that may be forthcoming in the absence of stabilized policy is the announcement by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey of indefinite deferments for men over 29 in "useful" work. This decision is sensible, but it would have been equally sensible two months ago when men over 29 and doing "useful" work were still being drafted.

The country has accepted at face value the explanation that the armed services needed flexibility in stating their needs and filling them. It still accepts the explanation. But it is also evident that as the war continues toward its ultimate conclusion, there will be confusion between purely military decisions and other decisions made by military authority, but having to do with postwar consequences.

Once Bitten, Twice Shy

Optimists on V-J prospects are peddling their stock in a bear market. The American public, once bitten, is twice shy. It is prepared for a long war with Japan. This is the new No. 1 fact of war psychology.

Acts and promises that would have been interpreted as official evidence of imminent victory before now are discounted heavily. The popular attitude has found expression in reluctance to accept official promise at face value. Especially has it expressed itself in skepticism about military opinion. The people have decided that generals and admirals are subject to error, too.

"Experience has shown that any effort to predict definitely the duration of war usually fails," observed Fred M. Vinson, director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion in his report this month on the Japanese phase of World War II. "All our effort toward war, and toward production, will be needed up to the last instant."

Mr. Vinson's own twice-shy realism is further expressed in statements about Japan's massive military and industrial strength, neither of them seriously hurt yet by attack. His attitude is a partial guarantee against repetition of the folly of 1944 after the Allies had routed Germany from France. Many officials then saw immediate victory in the offing and said so. But when the public believed them, and their guess proved wrong, the public was blamed, instead of the officials. Washington apparently has decided it cannot afford a repetition of that sad performance.

Second Guessing

Now that Germany has capitulated, the military experts are revising the second guessing that began long ago, and are revamping their lists of the errors by which the Nazis beat themselves. Most such lists continue to include at least two fatal mistakes—one, Hitler's failure to invade Britain in 1940; another, his treacherous attack on Russia.

Monday-morning quarterbacking is often justly derided. It is much easier to decide correctly after a decision has been tested by an event. And Hanson Baldwin, the New York Times' capable military writer, points out that was never to go according to plan, notwithstanding claims made in official communiques. The best of generals make mistakes.

The importance of current second-guessing on German errors in World War II is that everybody agrees that, except for them, Germany would have won the war. Britain could have been defeated before

American weight could be made fully effective. By this time an Axis "new order" would have ruled the world.

Put it another way. Germany and Japan were strong enough, in the opinion of informed critics, to have conquered the remainder of the world. They failed only because of a series of errors. It seems far from impossible that they could have won in spite of several of their mistakes, but they could not overcome all of them.

If they had invaded England in 1940 they would have found less than one fully equipped division available for defense. If they had not turned on Russia they could have devoted to western enemies the entire strength that almost conquered the continent. If they had not forced the United States into premature belligerency they might still have won.

The more those ifs are emphasized, the better. We can not remind ourselves too often of the narrow escape we had. We must realize and never forget that the Nazis are beaten today and the Japs will be beaten eventually by their own mistakes—not by our foresightedness.

Twice, now—each time by a narrow margin—we have retrieved victory from defeat. A third time, led by a military technician more competent than Corporal Hitler, Germany probably would conquer us before we could take two or three years to build and equip an army and navy.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Symptoms, Treatment of Parkinson's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

PARKINSON'S disease or paralysis agitans is a chronic disorder which occurs in older persons for the most part. However, it may occur following encephalitis or inflammation of the brain, which in turn often develops after attacks of influenza.

In more than 200 patients studied by Doctor Roland M. Klemme of St. Louis, injuries accounted for a few cases of paralysis agitans. Hardening of the arteries of the brain was responsible for this condition in four of the patients, while in more than two-thirds the disorder was produced by encephalitis. In about one-fifth of the patients no cause could be found. Men had the disorder about twice as often as women.

Symptoms of Disease

The symptoms of paralysis agitans consist of an increase in sweating, a disturbance of the gait or walking, an increase in the amount of saliva, a set appearance of the face and stiffness of the muscles. The patients affected with this condition have a tremor or twitching of the hands, shaking of the head and a shuffling gait.

The treatment of paralysis agitans has been carried out by using various drugs with the hope that they would relax the muscles and relieve the twitching and other symptoms. Such drugs as hyosine have been used. Belladonna has also been employed, particularly a variety known as Bulgarian belladonna. A part of the vitamin B-complex known as vitamin B-6 or pyridoxine has been given in large doses by injection with reported improvement in some cases.

Operation Used

Doctor Klemme has used an operation on his patients suffering from paralysis agitans, and he found that in more than three-fourths of them, improvement resulted and restoration of the action of the muscles occurred. A certain area of the brain known as the premotor cortex is the site of the operation. By cutting this part of the brain, he thinks, that nerve impulses may be kept from passing down from the brain to other parts of the nervous system.

In carrying out this operation, of course, the premotor cortex must be carefully marked off and then cut. It is necessary to remove part of the skull to reach the brain area.

In outlining the motor area of the brain or the area which controls movement, stimulation with an electric current is employed. An electric knife is used to cut the premotor cortex.

Of course, this operation is one which must be carried out by a surgeon experienced in surgery of the nervous system. However, Parkinson's disease is responsible for such great disability and interference with activity that the operation would appear to be well worthwhile in those cases selected by the surgeon as the type which might respond.

Switching Shoes

A year ago when our own politics was warming up, the British were warned not to take the national election in the United States too seriously. Americans, they were told, were likely to say and do things during a national campaign that no foreigner could understand. The British, themselves, took a pledge to stay out of America's quadrennial "family fight."

The shoe now is on the other foot. Britain is getting ready for an election. We are going to hear that Prime Minister Churchill is everything his admirers and critics thought he wasn't. That sort of thing already has started.

We also will hear, in all probability, that if Mr. Churchill isn't elected, Great Britain will go to pot; that he is the only Englishman who can hold up Britain's dignity in conferences with Marshal Stalin and President Truman. And if we listen closely, we will hear that the reason for throwing out Mr. Churchill and getting a new boy to look after British interests is because he has been taken into camp by sharp American foreigners. No American will believe this, because we know that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin are the sharp foreigners, but it will be said.

In brief, this is a good time to concede that British politics yields nothing to our own in irrational arguments used to approach rational conclusions. With that in mind, we shall be well advised to let the British fight among themselves and reflect that when it's over there will always be an England, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding. Meanwhile, if anyone wants to lay odds against the probability that there still will be a Prime Minister Churchill, it's a good bet to take.

Congress Should Make Policy

The government is making more than military decisions in its demobilization plans and in the basis of selection for continued draft calls.

Some of these decisions are out of the realm of military responsibility and into the borderland of social policy. In this area, Congress has undisputed authority.

Thus, at this time a congressional review of demobilization prospects and selective service would be in order. Another clearly would be in order at the end of the Japanese war. The public needs complete assurance that Congress retains its prerogative to decide all matters not directly related to prosecution of the war, particularly demobilization.

A sample of the confusion that may be forthcoming in the absence of stabilized policy is the announcement by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey of indefinite deferments for men over 29 in "useful" work. This decision is sensible, but it would have been equally sensible two months ago when men over 29 and doing "useful" work were still being drafted.

The country has accepted at face value the explanation that the armed services needed flexibility in stating their needs and filling them. It still accepts the explanation. But it is also evident that as the war continues toward its ultimate conclusion, there will be confusion between purely military decisions and other decisions made by military authority, but having to do with postwar consequences.

Once Bitten, Twice Shy

Optimists on V-J prospects are peddling their stock in a bear market. The American public, once bitten, is twice shy. It is prepared for a long war with Japan. This is the new No. 1 fact of war psychology.

Acts and promises that would have been interpreted as official evidence of imminent victory before now are discounted heavily. The popular attitude has found expression in reluctance to accept official promise at face value. Especially has it expressed itself in skepticism about military opinion. The people have decided that generals and admirals are subject to error, too.

"Experience has shown that any effort to predict definitely the duration of war usually fails," observed Fred M. Vinson, director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconstruction in his report this month on the Japanese phase of World War II. "All our effort toward war, and toward production, will be needed up to the last instant."

Mr. Vinson's own twice-shy realism is further expressed in statements about Japan's massive military and industrial strength, neither of them seriously hurt yet by attack. His attitude is a partial guarantee against repetition of the folly of 1944 after the Allies had routed Germany from France. Many officials then saw immediate victory in the offing and said so. But when the public believed them, and their guess proved wrong, the public was blamed, instead of the officials. Washington apparently has decided it cannot afford a repetition of that sad performance.

Second Guessing

Now that Germany has capitulated, the military experts are revising the second guessing that began long ago, and are revamping their lists of the errors by which the Nazis beat themselves. Most such lists continue to include at least two fatal mistakes—one, Hitler's failure to invade Britain in 1940; another, his treacherous attack on Russia.

Monday-morning quarterbacking is often justly derided. It is much easier to decide correctly after a decision has been tested by an event. And Hanson Baldwin, the New York Times' capable military writer, points out that wars never do go according to plan, notwithstanding claims made in official communiqués. The best of generals make mistakes.

The importance of current second-guessing on German errors in World War II is that everybody agrees that, except for them, Germany would have won the war. Britain could have been defeated before

American weight could be made fully effective. By this time an Axis "new order" would have ruled the world.

Put it another way. Germany and Japan were strong enough, in the opinion of informed critics, to have conquered the remainder of the world. They failed only because of a series of errors. It seems far from impossible that they could have won in spite of several of their mistakes, but they could not overcome all of them.

If they had invaded England in 1940 they would have found less than one fully equipped division available for defense. If they had not turned on Russia they could have devoted to western enemies the entire strength that almost conquered the continent. If they had not forced the United States into premature belligerence they might still have won.

The more those ifs are emphasized, the better. We can not remind ourselves too often of the narrow escape we had. We must realize and never forget that the Nazis are beaten today and the Japs will be beaten eventually by their own mistakes—not by our foresightedness.

Twice, now—each time by a narrow margin—we have retrieved victory from defeat. A third time, led by a military technician more competent than Corporal Hitler, Germany probably would conquer us before we could take two or three years to build and equip an army and navy.

THE AUGURIES are powerful for all sort of productive, progressive and ambitious propositions or objectives, wherein clever strategies, well-thought-out plans and techniques are required to develop public as well as private deals or outstanding ventures. Financial standing, prestige or personal popularity are of domestic, affectional and social significance. Sudden change or rearrangements where head and heart are to be considered, with vision and recognition for the codes and future security. All physical and spiritual or romantic assets should be wisely conserved and turned to good account for happiness.

If It Is Your Birthday

An important and vital year is promised those whose affairs, public, financial, professional and romantic, are deeply concerned. Well-organized plans, some radical changes and a concentration of all factors should be subjected to long range vision and cautious manipulation. Intrigues, subtlety and ingenuity are, as well as adherence to conventional rules and regulations, bound to win the happiest and most lucrative culminations. Large institutions are part of the problem or community; fraternal or group issues may overrule the private enjoyments.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Symptoms, Treatment of Parkinson's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

PARKINSON'S disease or paralysis agitans is a chronic disorder which occurs in older persons for the most part. However, it may occur following encephalitis or inflammation of the brain, which in turn often develops after attacks of influenza.

In more than 200 patients studied by Doctor Roland M. Klemme of St. Louis, injuries accounted for a few cases of paralysis agitans. Hardening of the arteries of the brain was responsible for the condition in four of the patients, while in more than two-thirds the disorder was produced by encephalitis. In about one-fifth of the patients no cause could be found. Men had the disorder about twice as often as women.

The symptoms of paralysis agitans consist of an increase in sweating, a disturbance of the gait or walking, an increase in the amount of saliva, a set appearance of the face and stiffness of the muscles. The patients affected with this condition have a tremor or twitching of the hands, shaking of the head and a shuffling gait.

The treatment of paralysis agitans has been carried out by using various drugs with the hope that they would relax the muscles and relieve the twitching and other symptoms. Such drugs as hyosine have been used. Belladonna has also been employed, particularly a variety known as Bulgarian belladonna. A part of the vitamin B-complex known as vitamin B-6 or pyridoxine has been given in large doses by injection with reported improvement in some cases.

Operation Used

Doctor Klemme has used an operation on his patients suffering from paralysis agitans, and he found that in more than three-fourths of them, improvement resulted and restoration of the action of the muscles occurred. A certain area of the brain known as the premotor cortex is the site of the operation. By cutting this part of the brain, he thinks that nerve impulses may be kept from passing down from the brain to other parts of the nervous system.

In carrying out this operation, of course, the premotor cortex must be carefully marked off and then cut. It is necessary to remove part of the skull to reach the brain area.

In outlining the motor area of the brain or the area which controls movement, stimulation with an electric current is employed. An electric knife is used to cut the premotor cortex.

Of course, this operation is one which must be carried out by a surgeon experienced in surgery of the nervous system. However, Parkinson's disease is responsible for such great disability and interference with activity that the operation would appear to be well worthwhile in those cases selected by the surgeon as the type which might respond.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Army To Discharge One Out of Every 9 Officers

WASHINGTON, May 24—The Army expects to release, under the point system, proportionately as many officers as enlisted men.

This means, roughly, that one officer will get out of service for every nine enlisted men discharged. Approximately 1,300,000 officers and men will be released this year under the point system, which gives credit for service, combat and parenthood. However, point scoring is secondary in determining whether any individual officer will be released after he attains the necessary 85 points. His particular value to the army takes precedence over his score.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a youngster—Now her backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they realize that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with starting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 13 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Army To Discharge One Out of Every 9 Officers

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Army expects to release, under the point system, proportionately as many officers as enlisted men.

This means, roughly, that one officer will get out of service for every nine enlisted men discharged. Approximately 1,300,000 officers and men will be released this year under the point system, which gives credit for service, combat and parenthood.

However, point scoring is secondary in determining whether any individual officer will be released after he attains the necessary 85 points. His particular value to the army takes precedence over his score.

DU PONT SELF-CLEANING HOUSE PAINT

Starts White—Stays White
 Why is Du Pont House Paint so brilliantly white? Because it's made with titanium dioxide, the pigment that's even whiter than snow! This paint stays white, too, because—

It's Self-Cleaning
 Du Pont House Paint is so formulated that, as time goes by, a microscopically fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this powder away, taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving the surface clean and white again. (Excessive accumulations of dirt, particularly in sooty industrial communities, or in heavily shaded locations, may delay or interfere with this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Guards the Surface
 Du Pont House Paint also protects against rot and decay, gives lasting beauty and real durability.

TRUMAN

Today's appointments was uniformly favorable.

Ickes Remains

Newsman attending Mr. Truman's news conference yesterday had been looking only for the acceptance of the Biddle resignation.

A reporter asked if Treasury Secretary Morgenthau had offered his resignation. Mr. Truman said he had not said that if Morgenthau had it would not have been accepted.

Asked if he had asked for the resignation of any of those replaced yesterday, the President replied in the negative.

Miss Perkins' retirement leaves Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, 71, as the last member of the original Roosevelt cabinet of 1933.

All the new appointments, subject to senate confirmation, are effective June 30 next, except that of Anderson, who will succeed to the agriculture post when Wickard is confirmed as REA chief.

Future plans of Biddle and Miss Perkins were not known today. Friends of the attorney general said he probably would resume the practice of law if he does not accept a diplomatic post.

terday's appointments was uniformly favorable.

Ickes Remains

Newsman attending Mr. Truman's news conference yesterday had been looking only for the acceptance of the Biddle resignation.

A reporter asked if Treasury Secretary Morgenthau had offered his resignation. Mr. Truman said he had not and that if Morgenthau had it would not have been accepted.

Asked if he had asked for the resignation of any of those replaced yesterday, the President replied in the negative.

Miss Perkins' retirement leaves Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, 71, as the last member of the original Roosevelt cabinet of 1933.

All the new appointments, subject to senate confirmation, are effective June 30 next, except that of Anderson, who will succeed to the agriculture post when Wickard is confirmed as REA chief.

Future plans of Biddle and Miss Perkins were not known today. Friends of the attorney general said he probably would resume the practice of law if he does not accept a diplomatic post.

The War Today By DeWitt MacKenzie

came to power he called in members of the churches for a conference. He told them that he did not want any trouble with them but that he regarded Christianity as a dying thing. He added: "You go on, but don't interfere with me and I won't interfere with you."

"Later he encountered opposition of which Rev. Martin Niemol-ler is an outstanding example. Then the internment camps were filled with Christians. Hitler is out to destroy Christianity."

Hitler did destroy Christianity in minds of a host of German youth.
But he couldn't shake faith of people like Niemoller, and only a couple of days ago we heard from this famous Lutheran pastor through Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, who met the German in Rome where the latter has been living since liberation after years of Nazi imprisonment.

The bishop said Niemoller saw little possibility of successful collaboration with Germany as a nation until after a "long period of controlled education." Because of the indoctrination of Nazism among Germans between the ages of 22 and 30, the pastor thought the United States should direct its re-education efforts at Germans under 22. Nie-moller's name naturally is on many tongues once more, and a letter
I've received from a leader of this column asks:
"Is there any other German leadership we could trust more than that of men like Niemoller?"
The answer clearly is that it's to stalwarts like Niemoller to whom we must look for help in the momentous task of remoulding the character of the German nation.

A SONG to REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

XIV

"After all, from Warsaw to Paris is not a hop and a skip. Now we are here. Maybe you had given us up. Well, I could understand that—"

Louis Playel scratched his head.

"But when Jozef Elsner writes he is coming—then that is the end of it—then you can count on it—"

"Of course."

"Elsner?"

"Frederic, you hear? Elsner! My name! Did you think he had forgotten? Eh?" Then to Louis Playel: "You have my letter?"

Louis Playel shook his head.

"You don't have it?"

"Humph. Well, no matter. I have yours, and that's enough, my dear Louis—"

Louis Playel took the letter which almost fell apart from age in his hands.

Frederic said: "It was sent, Monsieur, some time ago."

"Did I say it was yesterday? But after all, how long was it?"

Louis Playel said in a chilly voice: "Some dozen years ago."

"Tch, tch, is it that long?" Jozef Elsner applied his kerchief to his underchin. "Well, no matter. We'll not waste any more time." He stuffed the kerchief into his pocket. "No," Louis Playel said. "We have wasted all the time we are going to waste."

"Exactly," Jozef Elsner said. "Now, Louis, you will want to hear him—just as a matter of formality, of course—"

Louis Playel sprang from his chair. "Elsner! Professor Elsner!"

Jozef Elsner drew in his chin. "Let me inform you," piped Louis Playel, stretching halfway across his desk, "let me inform you there can be no concert for this young man—under my auspices!"

Louis Playel loosened his collar. "I am sorry. Very sorry. But I am also emphatic—The Salle Playel, Monsieur, is taken—solidly—for indefinitely in the future!"

"—Louis, please; that is nothing. That is only to be expected. Do you think, Louis, Jozef Elsner is such a stupid fool? No, Louis. He is not stupid."

Louis Playel drew a long breath. He sat down.

"—Louis, this is my pupil, Frederic Chopin. He is no ordinary pianist. He is an exceptional artist. Well, do you say no to an exceptional artist? Tch, tch—of course not. You move everybody down one—and make a place."

"Oh," said Louis Playel. "You do?"

"Yes, Louis. Could anything be more simple? But Frederic is not

up. Look at him! Now Louis, hear him! You will realize the prodigy is even more prodigious!"

"—Out of the question!"

Louis Playel had sunk so far he could sink no farther without sliding out of his chair altogether. He pulled himself to an upright position and then to his feet. "You will now do me the great honor to leave." He waved in the direction of the door.

"Professor, please; there are other auspices in Paris—"

"—The best is Louis Playel!"

Jozef Elsner brought the flat of his hand down on Playel's desk with a bang that almost bounced

Louis Playel down into his chair again. "—It will be Louis Playel! Nothing less!"

His ear suddenly caught the sound of a piano.

Playel's clerk, out of breath, was in the doorway. "Monsieur Playel!" He was gesturing with both hands. "Well?"

The clerk gulped.

"Well!"

The clerk gulped again.

"Well!"

The clerk whispered: "Franz Liszt!" He stood in the doorway, nodding, making gestures.

Jozef Elsner threw out his arms. "—My dear Louis—"

It was Frederic's turn to gulp. His face was losing its color.

"Frederic, you hear!"

"—Yes, My music!"

A SONG to REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

XIV

"After all, from Warsaw to Paris is not a hop and a skip. Now we are here. Maybe you had given us up. Well, I could understand that—"

Louis Pleytel scratched his head.

"But when Josef Elsner writes he is coming—then that is the end of it—then you can count on it—"

"Of course."

"Elsner?"

"—Frederic, you hear? Elsner! My name! Did you think he had forgotten? Eh?" Then to Louis Pleytel: "You have my letter?"

Louis Pleytel shook his head.

"You don't have it?"

"—Humph. Well, no matter. I have yours, and that's enough, my dear Louis—"

Louis Pleytel took the letter which almost fell apart from age in his hands.

Frederic said: "It was sent, Monsieur, some time ago."

"—Did I say it was yesterday? But after all, how long was it?"

Louis Pleytel said in a chilly voice: "Some dozen years ago."

"Tch, tch, is it that long?" Josef Elsner applied his kerchief to his underchin. "Well, no matter. We'll not waste any more time. He stuffed the kerchief into his pocket. "No," Louis Pleytel said. "We have wasted all the time we are going to waste."

"Exactly," Josef Elsner said. "Now, Louis, you will want to hear him—just as a matter of formality, of course—"

Louis Pleytel sprang from his chair. "Elsner! Professor Elsner!" Josef Elsner drew in his chin. "Let me inform you," piped Louis Pleytel, stretching halfway across his desk, "let me inform you there can be no concert for this young man—under my auspices!"

Louis Pleytel loosened his collar. "I am sorry. Very sorry. But I am also emphatic—"

The Salle Pleytel, Monsieur, is taken—solidly—for indefinitely in the future!"

"—Louis, please; that is nothing. That is only to be expected. Do you think Louis, Josef Elsner is such a stupid fool? No, Louis. He is not stupid."

Louis Pleytel drew a long breath. He sat down.

"—Louis, this is my pupil, Frederic Chopin. He is no ordinary pianist. He is an exceptional artist. Well, do you say no to an exceptional artist? Tch, tch—of course not. You move everybody down one—and make a place."

"Oh," said Louis Pleytel. "You do?"

"Yes, Louis. Could anything be more simple? But Frederic is not

up. Look at him! Now Louis, hear him! You will realize the prodigy is even more prodigious!"

"—Out of the question!"

Louis Pleytel had sunk so far he could sink no farther without sliding out of his chair altogether. He pulled himself to an upright position and then to his feet. "You will now do me the great honor to leave." He waved in the direction of the door.

"Professor, please; there are other auspices in Paris—"

"—The best is Louis Pleytel!"

Josef Elsner brought the flat of his hand down on Pleytel's desk with a bang that almost bounced

Louis Pleytel down into his chair again. "—It will be Louis Pleytel! Nothing less!"

His ear suddenly caught the sound of a piano.

Pleytel's clerk, out of breath, was in the doorway. "Monsieur Pleytel!" He was gesturing with both hands. "Well?"

The clerk gulped.

"Well!"

The clerk gulped again.

"Well!"

The clerk whispered: "Franz Liszt!"

He stood in the doorway, nodding, making gestures.

Josef Elsner threw out his arms. "—My dear Louis—"

It was Frederic's turn to gulp. His face was losing its color.

"Frederic, you hear!"

"—Yes, My music!"

Opening Of Class A League At Centennial Planned Monday

Salem China To Vie With Mullins In Opening Game; Recreation - Leetonia Second

The opening day of the Salem Class A softball league at Centennial park has been definitely set for Monday, Joe M. Kelley, league manager, announced today.

The first contest—to begin at 6 p. m.—will be between the 1944 Championship Salem China squad and a potentially powerful Mullins outfit. The second game, set for 7, will see the Recreation meet a new Leetonia squad.

Kelley said final work on the park diamond was begun yesterday after rain has postponed operations for more than a week. If good weather prevails this week the diamond will be in shape and ready for use Monday.

In the meantime, Kelley has requested that all teams and players keep off the upper diamond at the park, as the new top soil being applied has not been rolled. Any practice there now would be damaging to the field, he said. The lower Class B diamond may be used.

The eight team league, which includes besides the opening teams, the Salem News, Sinclair, Demings and Eagles, will be run on a three or four round basis this year. Each team will meet every other team in a round.

The second night of play will see the News tangle with the new Sinclair team and in the 7 o'clock game the Eagles will try to measure a veteran Deming outfit.

Games will be played Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of each week. Umpire for the A league will be Ray Reasbeck, who has been associated with softball in Salem in one capacity or another ever since its beginning back in 1926.

Kelley said the league will plan to open play Monday and if that schedule is not carried out the dates on the complete program will be changed accordingly.

The complete card for the first round is as follows:

May 28—China vs Mullins and Recreation vs Leetonia.

May 29—News vs Sinclair and Demings vs Eagles.

May 31—China vs Recreation and Mullins vs Leetonia.

June 1—News vs Demings and Eagles vs Sinclair.

June 4—Mullins vs Recreation and China vs Leetonia.

June 5—News vs Eagles and Sinclair vs Demings.

June 7—News vs China and Mullins vs Sinclair.

June 8—Recreation vs Demings and Leetonia vs Eagles.

June 11—China vs Sinclair and Mullins vs Demings.

June 12—Recreation vs Eagles and Leetonia vs News.

June 14—Eagles vs Mullins and China vs Demings.

June 15—Recreation vs News and Leetonia vs Sinclair.

June 18—Mullins vs News and Eagles vs China.

June 19—Recreation vs Sinclair and Leetonia vs Demings.

All first games set for 6 p. m. and second games at 7.

Mullins Softballers Have Game Postponed

Mullins softballers were notified today by Business Manager Eddie Scullion that a scheduled game between Mullins and the General Fireproofing outfit of Youngstown, originally set for Sunday, has been called off.

Scullion said the game would be played in Salem at a later date.

SALE OF COOPER IS SURPRISE TO NEARLY EVERYONE

Boston Happiest Over Deal Which Gives Them Best Pitcher In Loop

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, May 24 — Morton Cooper, who found he couldn't win a salary argument with Owner Sam Breadon and still play baseball with the St. Louis Cardinals, packed today for a trip to Pittsburgh to join the Boston Braves, his new club.

Cooper was traded yesterday for Pitcher Charles "Red" Barrett and an unannounced amount of cash, reported reliably to be about $50,000. It was the largest player transaction made by the Cards since 1941 when they sent Johnny Mize to the New York Giants for Ken O'Dea, Bill Lohrmann and $50,000.

The surprise deal came as a climax to a six weeks' salary disagreement between Cooper and Breadon during which the big right-hander deserted the club three times.

A conference was arranged yesterday between Cooper, his attorney Lee Havener, Breadon and the Cardinals manager, Billy Southworth, ostensibly to discuss financial terms on which the pitcher would rejoin the club.

Mort Happy

However, the conference lasted less than 30 minutes before Breadon told Cooper he had been traded. Although none of the participants would say officially, it was learned that very little other than the trade was discussed. Breadon apparently had made his decision before agreeing to the meeting since the two Boston representatives were waiting in his outer office.

Cooper previously had said he did not want to be traded, but came from the gathering smiling and said "Everybody's happy."

That went double for the Boston representatives, President Louis P. Quinn and General Manager John Quinn. Beaming broadly, they told reporters they thought they had gotten the best pitcher in the league and Boston fans "will certainly be happy."

Kennel Club Enthusiasm High As Puppy Match And All-Breed Show Time Nears

The effervescent enthusiasm of dog lovers in the process of preparing for a large dog show was evident last night at the Memorial building as the Columbiana County Kennel club made plans, held committee meetings and signed a superintendent for their large All-Breed show to be held at Reilly stadium Sunday, Aug. 26.

Atty John T. Cholley of Canton, noted Doberman Pinscher breeder, trainer and judge, was speaker for the after-dinner session, which preceded the various committee meetings.

The club has completed nearly all the arrangements for the Puppy match to be held at Centennial park a week from Sunday. This affair, one of the largest planned in this sector is expected to draw from 100 to 200 puppy and novice dog entries.

William C. Gugerli, American Kennel club show superintendent, was contacted last night by both the Salem organization and the Mercer County Kennel club in Sharon, which had representatives at the meeting, to run the pair of shows.

Gugerli will supervise the Sharon show Aug. 25 and will have charge of the Aug. 26 show here. A plan is underway to include another show sponsored by the Butler County club on Friday of that week.

The Salem show will be held to raise money to provide a lead dog for a blind person. Plans include an advance ticket sale for the All-Breed show by the Boy Scouts of America troops here, with provisions made so that each troop will share in the money earned.

H. C. Harshman, chairman of the club's show committee, urged all members to write Senators Harold H. Burton and Robert A. Taft and Congressman Earl R. Lewis urging that the classification of dog shows be changed from a trade convention to a sporting event. A letter was signed by members present.

Cholley, illustrating his talk with one of his own Dobermans, explained the various points included in a standard as used by a judge in a show. He explained the fine and poor features of his own animal.

"Judges," he said, "are often unjustly criticized because spectators see a glaring fault in a dog from far off, but can't see his good points from another angle, which may often mean a larger number of points in the dog's favor."

Ralph Zimmerman of the membership committee presented membership applications from Jack and Jerry Young of East Liverpool, Lyle Drienbacher of Alliance, Mr. and

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Dan Culpin Gets His Second Wind

Dan Culpin got his plowing done in record time this year. He was, sitting on his porch, enjoying a well-deserved glass of beer, while Bob Wirts, his neighbor, still had over an acre to go.

It burned Bob up, seeing Dan relaxed while he worked. So he'd stop and have a glass of beer—and make out that he was in no hurry anyway.

"And that was the trouble," Dan explained to me. "I kept on going till I got my second wind; and saved my rest until the job was done. He stopped to rest—and he never got his second wind."

From where I sit, there's a moral there for all of us. We've been working hard to win this war. A little rest may look awfully tempting. But by keeping going, by never letting up, we can count on getting our second wind that will overcome weariness and see us through to Victory.

Dan Culpin Gets His Second Wind

Dan Culpin got his plowing done in record time this year. He was sitting on his porch, enjoying a well-deserved glass of beer, while Bob Wirts, his neighbor, still had over an acre to go.

It burned Bob up, seeing Dan relaxed while he worked. So he'd stop and have a glass of cider—and make out that he was in no hurry anyway.

"And that was the trouble," Dan explained to me. "I kept on going till I got my second wind; and saved my rest until the job

was done. He stopped to rest—and he never got his second wind."

From where I sit, there's a moral there for all of us. We've been working hard to win this war. A little rest may look awfully tempting. But by keeping going, by never letting up, we can count on getting our second wind that will overcome weariness and see us through to Victory.
